

INTEGRATED SERVICES

Meeting the challenge

When local or global disasters occur, the emergency management and other core services provided by Cotton's disaster restoration, construction, roofing and consulting divisions have a crucial role to play. Often, however, the scale of these catastrophes necessitates additional, case-specific measures.

To satisfy the demand for comprehensive and appropriate recovery measures to deal with complex crises, Cotton's Integrated Services Division designs and provides packages customized to handle incidents of all types.

In addition to services offered by Cotton's core divisions, packages can be tailored to include, among other things:

- Humanitarian and Logistical Support Services – including the set up of base camp and temporary facilities for lodging, dining, medical and sanitation; potable water supply; waste storage and disposal; temporary power generation; satellite communication; site security and site safety plans; fuel supply management; catering and meals-ready-to-eat.
- Environmental Measures - including mold remediation; oil-spill response and support; water-barrier inflated property protectors; and site dewatering.
- Debris Removal Services - including emergency road clearance; land clearance; hauling and demolition; and site clean-up.
- Marine Services - including marine debris removal; dredging services; sonar mapping, barge transportation; and industrial diving.
- Non-traditional services for complex problem sets.

Clients of the Integrated Services Division include:

- U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) subscribers
- Federal, State and municipal agencies
- Master Service Agreement contractors
- Defense contractors
- Oil and gas companies
- Environmental response contractors
- Debris management contractors

All bases covered

Whatever the emergency, and however challenging it may be, Cotton's Integrated Services Division has the capability and experience to handle it, both on the domestic and international front. And by taking advantage of Cotton's one-stop turnkey solution to prepare for and/or deal with major catastrophes, clients have the assurance of knowing that all eventualities are accounted for and covered.
